

Unpacking the ECA(SA) Labour Service

We can help you achieve your Goal.

About us.

The ECA(SA) is a registered employers' organization under the Labour Relations Act, representing South African electrical contractors since 1948. With a membership network of approximately 4000 electrical contractors, the ECA(SA) represents over 75% of the workforce employed within the electrical contracting industry.

Labour Matters? We've Got You Covered.

From expert advice to representation – your peace of mind is our priority.

As an ECA(SA) member, you get expert help with all your workplace labour needs:

- Expert advice on the electrical industry's Main Collective Agreement and labour laws.
- Hands-on support with disciplinary hearings, retrenchments, and workplace disputes.
- Representation in conciliation and arbitration disputes at the National Bargaining Council for the Electrical Industry and CCMA
- Representation at the Board of Trustees of the Electrical Industry Pension and Provident Funds.
- Help with legal applications like rescissions and Labour Court reviews (when necessary).
- Negotiating better work terms and conditions for the electrical industry.

We're here to protect your rights, guide you through challenges, and help you stay compliant.
